CAMPAIGN CLOSED.

Hon. C. W. Fairbanks Talks to a Crowded House at the Grand.

The last night of the active Republican canvass was marked by a very earnest and sloquent speech, at the Grand Opera-house, which was crowded to the doors, by Hon. Charles W. Fairbanks. Having spent the day in the great Republican demonstration at Columbus, and weary with arduous effort during the campaign, he nevertheless consented to accept the invitation of the State committee to take charge of the meeting. Governor Porter had been expected to speak, but had been taken ill with a heavy cold, and could not be present. The audience was, however, well entertained, though Governor Porter's absence was a disappointment.

The stage had been arranged in the parlor set and was resplendent with the national colors. A large portrait of Harrison hung from the rear. The Fairbanks Club was in attendance and occupied seats together on the left. The chairman of the meeting was Mr. Ferd Winter. The audience first listened to a song by the Bald-headed Glee Club, and then Mrs. Zerelda Seguin Wallace sang the hymn of the Re-public, "Star-spangled Banner," the Glee Club accompanying in the chorus. Mr. Winter, in presenting the speaker, referred to the eminent men who have taken part in this and past campaigns, and said that Mr. Fairbanks had always been found battling for Republican principles.

MADE A HAPPY SPEECH. Mr. Fairbanks was greeted with applause. He began his discussion with an allusion to the solo so charmingly rendered by Mrs. Wallace. "It is a song," he said, "which, when heard, strikes deep into our hearts. There is no Republican who can hear that song without recalling that it was his party which saved the flag by its own valor. [Applause.] His party never marched under any other flag. [Applause.] I have heard a touching story of the construction of the flag in Libby Our boys, captives in foul and cramped quarters, pined for the sight of the old flag. They conoluded to construct one. One gave a stripe of red from his red shirt, another a stripe of white from his white shirt, and so they made a flag, which they hung aloft. When the rebel officer came along and saw the flag, he ruthlessly pulled it down and tore it into shreds. But at the very hour of this spart the rebel flags over Fort Donelson with shot and shell. [Applause.]

"Never before, my fellow-citizens, did our party enter a campaign with grander principles. [Cheers.] Never before did we appeal to our fellow-citizens to vote for more splendid candidates. [Cheers.] We here in Indiana have presented Benjamin Harrison [cheers] to the approval of the people, and the ques-tion is soon to be decided whether he or Grever Cleveland shall be indersed. Already the verdict is recorded in the bearts of the people, and on Tuesday next that judgment will be recorded in the ballotboxes of the Nation, electing Benjamin Har-rison. [Great cheers.] He is to be the President, not only because of his high character, but also because of his distin-guished services. [Cheers.] When the passions of the campaign have cooled, all will concede his great ability and worth, and the justice of his re-election. His administration has been surpassed by none, and equaled by few from the days of George Washington to his own election. Mr. Fairbanks here stopped to commend the personnel of the State ticket, saying that each is worthy of the suffrages of all the people. He paid high compliment to Governor Chase, who as a soldier, a citizen and a State official has proved his fidelity to duty and a high character. The county ticket was also commended as one worthy of election, and the legislative ticket is one that challenges scrutiny and appeals to every lover of good government for sup-port. [Cheers.] Mr. Fairbanks then brought words of encouragement from the State, having traveled over it extensively in the canvass and having found the tide of victory wearing a Republican crest. STATE DEBT AND TAXES.

Mr. Fairbanks dwelt upon the enormous State debt, swollen by accretions of interest, because money had to be borrowed to pay the interest. The State debt, he said. is larger than that of either Ohio or Illinois, though both States are larger and more populous than Indiana. He demonstrated that the debt is of Democratic creation, and that it rises when Democrats control the State and falls when elections bring it the good fortune of Republican rule. In 1860, when the State came into Republican control, there was not only ten millions of debt, but the life of the State was threatened as well. The Republican party could have been excused if under the stress of the times the debt had increased. But during the decade to 1870 the party, under the guiding hand of Oliver P. Morton, reduced the debt to $4,000,000. It paid off and forever discharged $6,000,000 of the $10,000,-000 of debt. The name of Morton and the schievement, though twenty years have since passed away, proyoked liberal ap-plause. Morton, the speaker said, had to overcome the obstructionary tactics of the Democracy. It was if he were holding Democracy at bay with one hand and reducing the debt with the other. Then, said the speaker, the Democratic party secured control again, and the debt was increased to $4,800,000. In 1882 the Republicans decreased the debt $121,000. But in 1884 the Democrats again, in the inscrutable ways of Providence, carried the election. "I sometimes think," said Mr. Fairbanks, "that Providence does not un-derstand the ways of the Democratic party, or it would never be trusted with power." [Laughter.] Since 1884, continued the speaker, the Democrate have increased the State debt to quite $9,000,000. But for the direct tax law, which gave the State $718,000, a law signed by Benjamin Harrison and voted against by Bynum, the debt would have been $9,700,000. There are thus seen, said the speaker, two conspicuous facts, first, when the Democrats are in power the State obligations on creeping up, and when Republicans are in power the obligations decrease. [Cheers.] Mr. Fairbanks then denounced the tax plank in the Democratic State platform as openly, knowingly and deliberately false. He said the tax law is a force bill, not of the kind which is a figment of the Democratic brain, but of the kind that takes nearly $2,000,000 more from the pockets of the people by force, with no equivalent re-

The speaker next treated of the issue of pon-partisan control of the benevolent, penal and reformatory institutions. He denounced the Democratic partisan management for its profligate waste of the publie money, requiring $160,000 more to care for the insane in this State than in the larger State of Ohio. This partisan control is maintained only because the Democrats retain control of the Legislature by the unfairest of unfair means—the intamons gerrymander. The speaker here denounced this sort of political iniquity in unmeasured terms, showing that it operates in eighteen coun-upon the Democratic party that will seek power by such despicable and unconstitutional means. He appealed for Marion county to elect the Republican legislative candidates in order that this monstrous wrong may be righted. The audience showed itself in thorough sympathy with the speaker.

WILD-CAT MONEY. Mr. Fairbanks discussed next the wildcat money issue, and its allied interest, the free coinage of silver. He demonstrated the superiority of the national banking system, which was born in the brain and heart of the immortal Lincoln. [Cheers.] It takes as much labor, he said, to earn one of these wild-cat or desilver dollars as it does to earn the Republican dollar, which, whether gold, silver or paper, has 100 cents in it. Mr. Bynum was arraigned for his support of what every business man knows would upset our financial system, and do great injury to every wage earner. The audience was appealed to to assist in retiring the free-silver coinage advocate to private life. The speaker then showed up the faisity of the Democratic profession of friendship for the working masses. He asked for an instance of anything done by the Legislature of 1890 in the interest of labor. The Republican party, he declared. always enacts its pledges into laws. He enlogized the McKinley bill, and closed with an appeal for a vote of confidence in the first citizen of the State, Benjamin Harrison. The speech was one of much power, giving the hearers comething to think about in reaching the determination next Tuesday how to vote.

PRESIDENT HARRISON.

Estimate of Him as a Statesman and as Man by Lew Wallace, Jr. In a letter from New York to a friend in this city, Lew Wallace, jr., writes as follows of President Harrison:

But stop and think. This is said to be a think-ing campaign. Just think for one minute of the great educator, the apostle of purity in politics, the prophet of the people's cause, bargaining with Tammany for the fruits of the stolen Legislature! For that is what has been done. Grover Cleveland has lost his last claim to political honesty or courage in his surrender—complete and abject—to the political pirates whose enmity was his sole title to public confidence.

And to compare him with Benjamin Harrison! I shall not be in Indiana before the election, and so will make my speech to you-condensing somewhat, but retaining the cardinal points. In the first place, what consideration can any Hoosier at any time ever ask or expect in na-tional affairs if the State fails now to support its first President! No act in the private or public life of Benjamin Harrison gives the slightest warrant for a vote of want of confidence. Four years ago the Democrats had a candidate whose greatest claim to consideration was good luck. its citizens who had very different qualifications. This man, with a wife and two children absolutely dependent upon him, had taken a soldier's chances from the purest motives of patriotism. Without love of tumult or ambition for military glory, he did a soldier's duty well. Upon the return of peace, he resumed the practice of his profession, energetically, honestly and intelligently, so that he had few equals, and no superiors, as a lawyer in the entire country. His domestic life was without spot or blemish or suspicion. As a statesman, he had been sound upon every question and courageous in the expression of his convictions. As Senator, he had commanded the respect of his associates. In presenting him as a well-informed, well-balanced man, we took pride in saying that universal esteem, clear grit, right conduct, general information and sound statesmanship were things which do not happen to a man by chance. Our candidate was elected. The details of his administration are fresh in the memory. Not one is connected in any way with any scandal or shortcoming. No act but received the very harshest criticism in advance; no act but merited and has received the warmest commendation after its performance. Our seals owe their con-tinued existence to his firmness against England and against opprobrious critics at home The peaceable and honorable settlement with Chili was effected in the face of bitterly con-temptuous opposition at home. Every con-troversy handed down from the previous incompetent administration has been arranged. Our navy has been built grandly and economically. Our postolices have been taken out of the hands of jail-birds and political rounders. The organization has been perfected without going through our past experience of conditions and political rounders. perience of sending important letters by express to insure their delivery. The Agricultural De-partment has been developed not only with good results at home, but with extended markets abroad. The land controversies in the Interior Department have been put upon a just basis for settlement. The Attorney-general has very successfully conducted important litigation without incurring any suspicion of a personal interest. In short, the conduct of the government in all its branches never was and never can be netter; and through it all we Hoosiers know that Benjamin Harrison was President. Our candidate is up again against the same opponent and our argument is a thousand-fold stronger. The whole country knows the man now and we need bring forth no uncertain facts to support our claim that these things do not happen to a President by chance.

And underneath all these achievements was still the strong and healthy personality. It has happened to President Harrison that his most secret sentiments have been exposed to public inspection and we know him from his heart outward. We see in him the qualifications that bind together the family, the true unit of our American institutions. No fault has been shown, but instead the gentle, tender strength which commands the instant respect and even venera-tion of every right seeing, right thinking person. Wherein, then, can we Indianians find that which will excuse any failure to honor such a President and such a man!

NEW YORK IS SAFE.

Despite Sheehan's Bulldozing Chairman Car ter Predicts a Sweeping Victory. Chairman Gowdy yesterday received the following encouraging telegram from National Chairman Carter. NEW YORK, Nov. 5.

J. K. Gowdy: With a full Republican vote all along the line on Tuesday next you may be assured of a more pronounced Republican victory than has oc curred since the soldier statesman, General Grant, led the ticket in 1868. Driven to desperation by the hopelessness of their cause, the Democratic Lieutentant-governor of the State has issued a proclamation inciting evil-disposed persons to employ insurrectionary methods The law-abiding people of the State will resent such unpatriotic appeals.

THOS. H. CARTER, Chairman.

LOUIS E. MCCOMAS, Secretary. GETTING ON THE RIGHT SIDE.

Two Influential Democrats of West Indianapolis Who Will Vots for Harrison. The West Indianapolis Democrate have been coming into the Republican fold in flocks here lately. One of the latest, and one who has always been an influential man among the Democrats on the West Side, is Patrick F. McNulty, who announced ' himself last night as henceforth a Republican. Mr. Mc-Nulty ascribes for his change of polities some vital reasons. He states that the officers of the local Democracy are of such a character that they have systematically dead-beaten and robbed him as long as he would stand it, and he will vote for Harrison and Reid.

The following letter from Barney Decker, of West Indianapolis, is full of honest conviction, information, "Democratic harmony," and is "mighty good readin':"

To the Editor of the Indianapolis Journals I see by the columns of your paper that there have been other Democrats as well as myself betrayed and wronged by the men we supposed to be our friends. I take this step to get it before my friends and show up these good Democrats in their true light. Some eighteen months ago I was set upon by a gang of bullies and beaten and crippled by them, and was confined to my bed for several months, during which time my Democratic friends, J. W. Holtzman and Henry Langenburg, two of the men for whom I had worked hard, promised me their assistance in bringing these Democratic rowdies to justice, but when the names of these men were put into the hands of my supposed friends they never turned a hand to prosecute the rascals, for the simple reason that their father was considered a good Democrat and a man of some influence among Democrats. I had to suffer. while the boys publicly announced that there would be nothing done, because if Holtzman prosecuted them the Democratic party would lose votes. I have been a life-long Democrat and have worked hard for my party in the past, but I cannot consistently stay with a party that is so blind to justice that it will not prosecute bullies, bums and thugs after the grand jury bad found indictments against each of them, for fear of losing votes. I have taken this step to announce myself and friends very strongly in favor of the Republican ticket, as I feel this party will deal out justice to all and favors to none. I am anxious holders, and do all in my power to prevent their election. I am not alone in this fight. Truly BARNEY DECKER.

NOON MEETING. Yesterday's Gathering Was Fully as Suc-

ccasful as Its Predecessors. The noon meeting yesterday at county headquarters was a large one, and was successful in bringing out some strong Republican truths. Hon. W. L. Taylor, president of the Lincoln League of the State, was the chairman of the meeting. The speaker was Attorney-general Miller, who recounted the achievements of President Harrison's administration. He dwelt particularly, with splendid effect, upon the operations of the homestead law, Under Cleveland there were 360,000 entries suspended most of them being held by soldiers. When the present administra-Department set promotly to work to reinstate these farmer settlers upon the lands which belonged to them. Mr. Miller explained the beneficial operations of the meat inspection law! which has opened new markets and raised the price of the cattle and hogs that the farmers sell. Other speakers were Senator Mount, George L. Knox and J. H. Claypool. There will be another noon meeting to-morrow at which ex-Lieutenant-governor Hanna will preside. Many good speakers will be presences, and they have been fruitful of good results. At Bloomington, the other day, he had an especially good meeting. He also spoke at Rockport and other places. Mr. Griffiths Notified Too Late. There was no meeting at English's Operahouse last evening owing to the fact that Hon. John L. Griffiths, announced to speak, tion of the eiger-makers of this city, who recently signed an appeal to Congress. that the duty be raised, or lowered on Sumatra leaf, that that material might be excluded altogether from the country, or else let it in cheap enough for everybody to handle it. The idea of taking such action was instigated by one Henry Thienes, of the trade, and at some remote period a Democratic member of the State Legislature. Thienes assured his fellow-workmen that the matter should not be used as a political document, as it conceived no opposition to the McKinley bill, which had affected every cigar-maker and grower of the land most favorably. The object of the action was to antagonize certain speculators who had purchased large quantities of the leaf immediately before the McKinley bill went into force. Vice-president F. C. Constance, of C. M. I. U., No. 33, along with several other members, stated yesterday that they had been misrepresented by Thienes, and im-posed upon in an underhanded manner. Many of the cigar-makers expressed themselves of the opinion that Thienes had been paid well for the little job he had put up on them. Among a number of the members of the union who called at the Journal office, last night, to express their indignation in the matter were Vice-president F. C. Constance, Gustav Kluge, George Sharp, John F. Kline, L. F. Standen, Alex. Tulis, Thomas Hollingsworth, Gust Rost and M. Auer-

Charles Cobourn, whose real name is Tom Stewart, was arrested yesterday afternoon by patrolman Wynn and Sergeant Barlow, charged with forgery. Cobourn was in a saloon on South Meridian street endeavoring to get a check for $100, on the Indian-apolis National Bank, cashed. The check porported to be signed by Gen. At the Meridian-Street Church. Miss Sadie Walker will sing Mr. Barclay Walker's new song entitled "Why do the Wild Winds Sob," to-night at Dr. Cleveland's Church. The piece is said to be showing that it operates in eighteen counties having a population of 199,000, to disfranchise 47,000 Republicans as completely as if the votes of these citizens were refused or destroyed. He called down shame to cast my ballot for protection in all things. I think and believe that a party that protects its findustries will protect its people and give them justice. I shall go on with the work of shewing up these Democratic office-seekers and office-with the poet James Russell Lowell.

GOSSIP OF HORSE AND TURF

Associations Will Charge a Larger Percentage for Entries Next Season.

J. Malcolm Forbes, Owner of Nancy Hanks, Offers $6,000 as a Prize for a Two-Minute Trotter-Track Notes.

It requires little more than a hint nowadays to revolutionize affairs. Custom is not the supreme dictator here that it is in European countries. A good idea comes quickly to the front, if miles and miles of sewer-pipe have to be unearthed to give it a resting place. This is as true in the horse kingdom as it is otherwhere. A bad idea or principle is abandoned as quickly as a sinking ship. A number of race-meetings held this sumthe mer over the United States have proven unsuccessful financially. This is owing to the 5 per cent. universally charged, and so the majority have concluded to raise it to 10 per cen . This will, of course, have a tendency to diminish the entries, but it will improve the races. The 10 per cent. charges will hold at all of the meetings over the land except, perhaps, in Catifornia. The Columbia, Tenn., meeting dissolved after its first day, and is the latest example of the 5 per cent. charges. The Lexington, Ky., races were a failure. The Nashville meet-ing was a little better, and many others were not a success. It is gratifying to note the interest in horses and tracks over the Hoosier State, in the tace of the possible failure of this city as a racing center. Muncie will soon complete an elegant mile track and will draw the interests of horsemen in that direction. The rumor has lately been verified that parties in this city have been co-operating with others of Jacksonville, Fla., for a ninety days' race meeting in that city, beginning Dec. 1. Arrangements have been consummated and the meeting will be held.

There is no end to comment on recordbreakers or to the universal homage paid to the kings and queens of the turf to-day. George Stare is of the opinion that the twominute mile is to be trotted by a threeyear-old. The bike sulkey is conceded to be, by all horsemen, from three to five seconds cetter than the old kind. While Nancy Hanks made her 2:04 time with the former vehicle, it is a subject of some doubt as to whether or not she has really beaten the Maud S. 2:08% time. So goes the opinion among Maud S. admirers. At any rate, it seems that Mr. J. Malcolm Forbes is anxious to see the animal that can strike the two-minute gait, even though his celeatial Nancy Hanks can't quite do it herself. Mr. Forbes has offered $6,000 to the first horse that reaches that mark on a regulation track. "It seems to me," said Mr. Forbes, "that the conditions governing the $5,000 purse offered by Mr. Robert Bonner were not complied with, and no claim should be made fer it. He stipulated that the mile (2:05), should be made on one of the Grand Circuit tracks, and that he should be notified in time to be present. Neither of these was done by Mr. Doble, and therefore he, as driver, and I, as owner of Nancy Hanks, have no claim for his $5,000. If it were true, as stated, that Mr. Bonner withheld the $5,000 because the mile was trotted in a bicycle sulky, I should be much surprised, as Mr. Bonner ought to have known when he made the offer that the increase in speed was going to be made in the future, as it has been in the past, by improvement in pedigree, improvement in track, sulky and harness, and improvement in handling."

Though Mr. Forbes owns the queen of the turf and the $125,000 Arion, he is a true sportsman and longs for friendly rivalry, as will be seen by his letter, dated Naushon Island, to the Spirit of the Times: "Believing, as I do, that in the near ruture a mile will be trotted in two minutes.

but knowing that it can be only the result of the best judgment in breeding, educating and driving the horse that accomplishes the wonderful feat, I wish now to offer, as a reward for such skill, the sum of six thousand dollars ($6,000), one-half to go to the owner of the horse and one-half to the driver, subject to the following conditions:

"My offer holds good for the rest of the season of '92 and for the five years following, if I live. The mile to be trotted over a regulation track belonging to the National or American Trotting Association, and est-nated east of the Mississippi river. The trial to be made under the rules of the National Association. Notice to be given in writing that the trial is to be made beforehand, so that I can have time to go to the place and see the event, or send a repre-sentative. The driver can avail of all improvements in track, in harness, or in sulky. Trials for this purse only open to horses in the 2:05 class. I make the condition of an Eastern track only because I want to see the trial without going too far, and not from any prejudice to tracks further West. I take it for granted that the horse that will make a twominute record will come to it by successive stages, and before the five years have passed there may be several horses that have a record of 2:05 or better, and it will be from one of these that the two-minute mark will be reached, and not by some 2:10 horse suddenly attaining phenomenal speed on the day of trial. A further reason for opening this purse to the 2:05 class slone is in order that I shall not receive constant notices of trials to be made by oversanguine owners whose horses have really no chance of trotting in two minutes."

The speedy Meachum will be kept at LaPorte this winter. Floral Boy. 2:1714, will be sent home in a few days, where he will spend the winter. Curt Gosnell, of Rushville. Ind., will sell Laura Belle, 2:274, by Commander, 2:264, in the Chicago sale in December.

E. E. Kirk, of Spiceland, Ind., has bought a standard-bred filly, by Artemas, dam by Edgewater, second dam by Old Greenback, third dam by Old Jerry. Kissel's Dallas went into winter quarters last year with a record of 2:17, and this year retired with one of 2:221/2. Both records were made at Terre Haute. J. B. Newman, Indianapolis, owns one of the best pacing mares in the city. She is as handsome as a picture, is a family mare and can pace a 2:25 clip any day. A special says: There are thirty-nine mares entitled to a place in the table of great brood mares quartered at Palo Alto, and thirty-seven others that have produced one each in the list.

Direct did a half the other day in 1:011/2 and the last quarter in :294. He is somewhat late in rounding to but may recover sufficiently after returning to California to do a mile better than his record. H. M. Atkinson, of Wabash, Ind., has sold to L. L. Daugherty, of the same place,

Allen 11638, dam by Blue Bull 75, with a Poem colt by her side. Price, $375. W. J. Lehman, of this city, has quite a good pacing mare by Hamenger, out of a roan mare that several years ago could beat everybody in the snow. It is reported that she was entitled to a record of 2:16, the black mare Lottie C., 2:40, by Abdamed

The famous stallion Stockbridge Chief. for which Mr. C. H. Andrews, of Youngstown. O., paid $6,000 away back in the eighties, was recently purchased by James E. Brown, of Howland, O., for $25,85, The Bourbon, Ind., races were the best of the year, the attendance being good and a good list of entries. They have one of the best tracks in the State. The time at the trot and pace was made close to 2:20. The second son of Gny Wilkes to produce 2:30 or better trotting speed is Arthur Wilkes, 2:284, he being the sire of Wayland W., that now has a record of 2:25%. Gny Wilkes is not only proving himself to be a great sire, but his blood has a ready begun breeding on through his sons, and it will not be long until his daughters are throwing fast trotters.

GREAT AUCTION SALE ORIENTAL AND ANTIQUE RU

The almost wonderful exhibition of Oriental Rugs and Carpets closed on Saturday night. No visitor during the past three days has expressed the thought of ever having seen anything at all, in any place in the world, to compare in any respect with the magnificence of this display.

These treasures are owned by the Pettis Dry Goods Company, having been collected by our own special representative in Eastern countries.

The carpet-hall has been too small for the exhibition. Only part of the 400 pieces could be spread about and leave any room for visitors.

But on Monday, rain or shine, at 10:30 a. m. and 2:30 p. m., everyone of the 400 rugs will be offered at public auction, and sold for whatever you bid for them.

There could not possibly be a fairer, easier or more satisfactory manner in which to sell those Rugs than in this way-by auction-where you can bid whatever you judge each or any Rug or Carpet to be worth to you. If you have not seen this rare collectian, it will be best that you do so before the auction hour. On Tuesday and Wednesday the auction will begin at 10:30 a. m. and 2:30 p. m. Every lady and gentleman is invited to visit both the exhibition and auction.

From the manner in which our art-loving public have evinced their interest in the great Oriental Rug Exhibit, it is evident that our carpet-rooms will not begin to accommodate the great throng who will on Monday attend the sale. We would, therefore, ask those who have shown their appreciation of our efforts to kindly come as early as possible, and we will make every effort possible for your comfort and convenience.

The Governor's Guards is a military organization of this city whose short term of existence necesserily cuts its history shorter than that of any other military body of the State. Its career, though short, will lengthen as years go by until the roster molds and honors settle with the snow of age upon its members. This company was organized three years ago, to be an escort to the Governor on publie occasions, and assigned to the Second Regiment as Company E. They were mustered in by Maj. Ben C. Wright at the court-house on the evening of April 6, 1889. Private Secretary W. C. Roberts was elected president of the company, which office he retains to-day, and at the same time en listed as a private. After the muster, Charles S. Tarleton was elected captain. Will G. Beach first lieutenant and John K. Dean second lieutenant. There were sixty-eight men enlisted and immediately after the election of officers a banquet was held, and toasts responded to by ex-Governor A.G. Porter, Mayor Denny, Col. Samuel Merrill and Rev. R. V. Hunter. The banquet music was furnished by members of the company. For a time headquarters was in the baseof the court-house. soon after three elegant rooms in the Cyclorama Building were secured and elab-orately furnished, making it the finest military rendezvous in the State. At their opening there was a banquet and dancing. In September, 1889, the company was the escort of Governor Hovey to Elkhart, where he delivered an address at the unveiling of a soldiers' monument. Sixtytwo members accompanied him by a special train, and after the ceremonies were finished the Governor took the entire party, together with about thirty ladies and gen-tlemen of this city, to St. Joe, Mich., and stopped at the famous Plank's Tavern, on the lake shore. They remained there all day as the guests of the Governor. In May, 1890, they accompanied the Governor to commencement exercises at Purdue University, and while there gave an exhibition drill of an interesting nature.

Last year Captain Tarleton resigned his office to become secretary of the American Tin-plate-works at Elwood, and Sergeant M. V. Scott succeeded to the command as captain. The company has made an envia-ble record in all the State encampments, and now has within its ranks some of the best men of the Indiana militia. In the encampment held in this city in 1889. Governor Hovey and Private Secretary Colonel Roberts visited the camp and dined with the company. The Governor returned to the city early in the evening, leaving his private secretary behind. That night a detail of the Governor's Guards was doing picket duty, with positive instructions to allow no one to pass the line without the proper pass-word. At a late hour Private Secretary Roberts started to return to the city in a drizzling rain, and when crossing the outskirts of the camp was sternly commanded to halt, to advance and give the countersign. The picket was private George Jones, of the guards, and a special friend of the private secretary, who endeavored to induce the picket to pass him, but in vain, and as it was impossible to give the pass-word, the guard did his duty by marching the midnight traveler back to headquarters. It seemed that General Ruckie, the commander of the camp, anticipated the arrest of Col. Roberts and was conveniently absent when the guard brought his prisoner back to get the pass-word. The parties then went to Colonel McKee's headquarters to get the his prisoner back mystic word, but he, too, had been given the "tip," and was not to be found. The next place visited was Major Frank's headquarters, who was so indignant at being interrupted in his repose that he summarily ordered the prisoner to be taken to the guard-house. About this time things assumed a serious aspect to the private secretary, but the commanding officers, who were near by in the darkness, were enjoying the proceedings as the best joke of the encampment. They finally came to the rescue and relieved the unfort-Private Jones was complimented by Col.

Roberts for discharging his duty, and was subsequently, on Colonel Roberts's recommendation, appointed sergeant of the company. One of the most popular its and will decide it so.
